

Co-production Celebration Event

The aim of the event was to celebrate the progress that Sandwell ASC have made to improve the way we co-produce and involve people with lived experience. The event also marked national Co-production Week hosted by SCIE. It was an opportunity for us to demonstrate to partners and colleagues how ASC have started to move from planning co-production to delivery, and how our recent work is aligned to the principles of Sandwell's co-production charter. The agenda included a diverse group of speakers including commissioning, ADASS, carers, people with lived experience and Bridgit. Speakers were able to share reflections and also showcase the work they are involved in. This was followed by a market place event that brought internal and external partners together who work in co-production.

72

people attended

22

stalls from internal service areas and external organisations

100%

said they enjoyed
the event

100%

thought the event was very or somewhat relevant

What People Liked About the Event

The diverse range of services and organisations represented.
Hearing about developments and initiatives across Sandwell.
Learning directly from people with lived experience.
Opportunities to network and build partnerships.

What People Would Like Next Time

A larger venue to accommodate more attendees including residents and more people with lived experiences.
More interactive activities and engagement opportunities.
Information and support around employment opportunities.

I found the stories from the speakers were very inspirational, powerful and moving. Their journeys of progression and personal development are means of instilling confidence in others regarding the services and a means of hope and opportunity.

Excellent event cant wait to see what's next in Sandwell!!

Watch Our Co-production Journey
Visit our website and learn more about Co-production in Adult Social Care

